Additional information regarding attempted service, etc:

The first service attempt was sent via USPS, with tracking number 70203160000230014902 on August 24, 2024 at 11:25 AM with certified restricted delivery to defendant Yarbrough's long-term and last known place of employment, working with defendant Story at 136 4th Avenue South, Franklin, TN 37064-2622. This was attempted prior to her home address because it was believed to be more convenient for her in the afternoons, since her home is in a different town based upon the information on hand. (Additional information continued on the next page.)

PROOF OF SERVICE—ADDITIONAL INFORMATION (CONTINUED)

According to the email tracking notifications provided by the USPS, service was delivered to the front desk of Story and Abernathy, PLLP on August 26, 2024, at 11:08 AM. Although the final tracking manifest provided by the USPS website contradicts that claim, instead showing that the package was "forwarded" from the office of Story and Abernathy on August 26th at 11:12 AM.

Ultimately this package appears to have been sent in circles, passing through the USPS Nashville Distribution Center four separate times, on 8/26, 8/29, 8/31, and on 9/4, while it was sent to the Franklin Post Office on at least two different occasions, on 8/26 and on 9/3/2024, before being returned in Michigan on September 9th, 2024.

Upon return of the package, it was stamped "ATTEMPTED - NOT KNOWN, UNABLE TO FORWARD, RETURN TO SENDER", all of which seem odd, for the following reasons:

- 1) Service to defendant Yarbrough was attempted at the same time as defendant Story's service was successful, so the mail carrier was at the right office location.
- 2) This was believed to have been the place of employment for defendant Yarbrough for over a decade, so for it to be stamped as "NOT KNOWN" seems strange.
- 3) Lastly, it was stamped "UNABLE TO FORWARD", yet it was unsuccessfully forwarded several times, according to the shipping manifest and email notices.

Eventually this was returned to me in Michigan, but since I had been monitoring the tracking online, Jeff decided to initiate a second service attempt at defendant Yarbrough's home, while due to time concerns for completing service we did not wait until we received this package back. Instead, another lawsuit service package was produced and service was attempted a second time to defendant Yarbrough, this time at her home address. This attempt too had some peculiarities, but appears to have been ultimately successful.

This was returned by the USPS exactly as shown, but folded in half and stapled together.

No information was provided except what you can see here.

I interpret this to be saying that the green card fell off the package inside the delivering mail carrier's vehicle, so they had the addressee sign for the package electronically (or by some other means), which they printed out on this white piece of paper, in place of the green card. Then the best I can figure, the mail carrier must have found the green card later in their vehicle, since it was attached as shown, so they stapled this signed proof of delivery to the green card and returned stapled together.

Looks like the green card became unattached before delivery

First Service Attempt for Kathryn Lynnn Yarbrough, at her last known place of employment, defendant Story's Law Firm located at 136 4th Avenue South, Franklin, TN 37064-2622.

Oddly after attempting delivery, this package was stamped as "NOT KNOWN", which seems suspect for a law firm where she worked for over a decade.

This package was also forwarded multiple times to different addresses, then eventually returned by the Post Office.

Service was next attempted at Ms. Yarbrough's home. Defendant Story's office was attempted first, because that was thought to be more convenient for her in the afternoons, since her home is in a different town, based upon the information at hand.
